

TELEVISION COMMERCE SYSTEM

Abstract of the Disclosure

A commerce control network is accessible through an interactive television system, such as a cable television or satellite system. The network includes client applications that provide users with the ability to buy products or get product information through the television.